

AN ODONATA RESOURCE LIST

Compiled (in no particular order) by Bryan Pfeiffer for the Eagle Hill Odonata Seminar

July 2015

- Dennis Paulson's Dragonfly Pages at the University of Puget Sound — A great general resource.
<http://www.pugetsound.edu/academics/academic-resources/slater-museum/biodiversity-resources/dragonflies/>
- Digital Scans from Gayle & Jeanell Strickland — Amazing field scans and identification points for some (not all) species.
<http://public.fotki.com/gstrick3/>
- Maine Dragonfly and Damselfly Survey
<http://tinyurl.com/na4cr7b>
- Odonata Central — Crowd-sourced Odonata records. Basically, eBird for odes.
<http://odonatacentral.bfl.utexas.edu/>
- Anisoptera Larval Keys (Michigan) — Includes a nice key to families.
<http://insects.ummz.lsa.umich.edu/michodo/test/Anisop.htm>
- Odonata-L Listserv — National email list.
<https://mailweb.pugetsound.edu/mailman/listinfo/odonata-l>
- Northeast Odonats Listserv
<https://groups.yahoo.com/neo/groups/NEodes/info>
- Migratory Dragonfly Partnership — Citizen science projects for ode migration and observation.
<http://www.migratorydragonflypartnership.org/index/welcome>
- Northeast Odonata (Facebook)
<https://www.facebook.com/groups/241657275954604/>
- John Rosford's Digital Images — Some nice, high-quality images of many species.
<http://www.rosford.com/odonata/index.html>
- Odes for Beginners
<http://www.odesforbeginners.com/>
- Aeshna canadensis (Canada Darner) and A. verticalis (Green-striped Darner) — A fine example of a methodical approach to separating two similar species
<http://urbanodes.blogspot.com/2011/10/aeshna-id-canada-versus-green-striped.html>
- Meadowhawks: The Red Dragonflies of Autumn — Scot King's amazing tribute to North America members of the genus Sympetrum
<http://meadowhawks.info/index.html>
- Ed Lam's elegant portrayal of various flying things
<http://www.edlam.net/>
- Ode News — Blair Nikula's site on the Odonata of southern New England
<http://odenews.org/>
- Dragonfly Society of the Americas — The major organization for odonate study and appreciation. You should join!
<http://odenews.org/>
- International Odonata Research Institute
<http://www.iodonata.net/>
- Northwest Dragonflier — The blog of the observant Jim Johnson
<http://odenews.org/>